

Here's to you

Description

Flower gardens and wild blooms are starting to brighten up the country and the days are slowly but surely becoming warmer, heralding the arrival of Spring – a time for renewed energy and appreciation of our people.

Interest in our quarterly employee magazine has increased, and we've thus increased our page numbers to accommodate even more exciting and relevant articles to enrich your employee experience.

This edition is jampacked with events and news impacting the AfroCentric Group, information to grow your knowledge and awareness, especially in the fast-changing digital landscape, articles to help you manage your health and well-being so that you can live your best life and inspiring stories about you, our people, who bring to the table a spirit of collaboration, caring and client-service excellence.

In this and coming editions of AfroScenes we'll be running a mini awareness campaign about our subsidiaries, starting with a focus on DENIS, the leading dental managed care company in South Africa and Scriptpharm, which ensures that medicines are managed in the most cost-effective way. In living up to our name, we aim to cover as many representations and experiences as possible, across AfroCentric.

Thank you for your contributions to this edition of AfroScenes! Please keep sending your stories of colleagues who inspire you, business news about projects you're working on and ideas for articles that you'd like to see us feature. Your feedback is invaluable, and we always look forward to collaborating with you to create a superb employee magazine.

Happy reading.

Palesa Makhetha

Category

1. Ed's Letter