

It's a wrap!

Description

As we wrap up another year, I'm thrilled to share some exciting news about our staff magazine. Interest and engagement in AfroScenes have been steadily growing, demonstrating just how much our contributions across the Group resonate with each other.

Our statistics reveal a significant increase in readership, a testament to the compelling content you provide. This is especially evident in the "Our People" section, which now boasts the highest number of articles as we celebrate and appreciate each other.

This enthusiasm only propels us to aim higher, and I want to encourage everyone to continue contributing. Let's make the new year even better by delving deeper into what makes us unique. We want more narratives, experiences, and viewpoints – we want to read more about you!

A bright future

Looking ahead, we have some exciting changes on the horizon for the magazine. We'll be introducing new formats and features to AfroScenes to enhance your reading experience, and I can't wait for you to see them unfold.

As we head into the festive season, I wish you all a wonderful time filled with joy, celebration, and quality moments with family and friends.

Thank you once again for your continuous contributions and commitment. Here's to a fantastic festive season and an even more incredible new year!

Happy reading.

Palesa Makhetha

Category

1. Ed's Letter