

Welcome to the summer edition of AfroScenes!

Description

Ke Dezember! As this year draws to a close, it's the perfect time to pause, enjoy precious moments with family and friends and recharge.

Your voice shapes our future

Earlier this year, you shared your thoughts through the AfroScenes Reader Survey – and we listened. You asked for more insights into our business, our industry and practical tips like spotting fraud. We've worked hard to bring you exactly that. The increase in contributions from you, our readers, has been phenomenal. Thank you for helping us make AfroScenes an inclusive, engaging and valuable read. That adds value, to you.

Campaigns that made a difference

From wellness initiatives to education drives like fraud awareness, this year's campaigns were designed to inform and empower. Don't miss our feature, A Family Meeting, on our stand against gender-based violence, and explore health-focused articles to keep you fit, healthy, and sun-safe this season.

Celebrating community impact

This edition also highlights our annual Eluthandweni Breast Cancer Awareness Walkathon, marking 10 years of championing community health and cancer awareness. Plus, we share practical tips to help your medical aid combat fraud and guidance on spotting fake websites during your festive online shopping.

Looking ahead

As we wind down and take a well-deserved break, let's rest and reset for an exciting year ahead. We have great initiatives in the pipeline, which we'll share in our next and better edition.

Big ups for keeping the vibe alive!

Warm regards,

Palesa Makhetha

Category

1. Ed's Letter

default watermark